A: We're talking today with Frank Pascal about his family. Thank you, Frank, for taking the time to talk with us today.

B: Thank you. It's my pleasure.

A: So, Frank, you're from France originally, right?

B: That's right. My family lives in France—in Normandy. But I live in the U.S. now.

A: So how many brothers and sisters do you have in all?

B: I have one brother and two sisters.

A: Well, that's a pretty big family, isn't it?

B: In France, it is.

A: Frank, let's talk first about you and your brother. What's his name?

B: Philippe.

A: Philippe. Does he look like you?

B: Not really. He's a lot taller and bigger than me. And he has blond hair. My hair is brown.

A: Is that all?

B: And he wears glasses. I don't.

A: How about the work you do? Similar or different?

B: Quite similar, actually. Philippe started as a teacher, and so did I. And today, we both still work in education.

A: How else are you alike?

B: Well, we both like rock music. But neither of us likes really loud music. Both of us are big basketball fans. And soccer. And we both play basketball, too.

A: Anything else?

B: Our personalities are pretty similar. We both enjoy humor. He likes to joke and laugh a lot and so do I.

A: And how are you different?

B: Well, I like to read books. But he reads newspapers and magazines mostly. Also, Philippe likes French movies and I prefer American movies.
