VOCABULARY-BUILDING STRATEGY: auditory representation

The main stress in a sentence is usually the most important word or words. For example, looking and National Bank are the most important words in the first sentence below. Know and address are the most important words in the second sentence.

• • •
I'm looking for the National Bank.

• •
Do you know the address?

When you learn new vocabulary words and phrases, mark the main stress so you remember how to say them.

PRACTICE

Listen to these sentences again and mark the main stress in each.

1. It's across from the park.
2. It's around the corner from the theater.
3. It's down the street from the museum.
4. It's on the right side of the street.
5. It's between Main and Mercer.
6. Turn left at the corner.
7. Go two blocks and turn right.
8. Go to the corner of Smith and Bond.
